

Mobile Communications

A Monthly Newsletter from Wearside Communications

Avoid a run-in with the boys in blue, or worse, and have a handsfree kit fitted to your car.

Car kits are available for all types of vehicles and for most makes of mobile phones and radios. The benefits of using your phone or radio with a car kit are :

Your battery will be permanently on charge (if cradle included) or you can keep it in your pocket (Bluetooth).

You have a far better and safer view of the keys and/or screen and the road.

You can have an external aerial (not Bluetooth), giving a better signal.

Your car stereo will be muted and the phone audio sent to the stereo speakers.

The phone won't keep falling off the passenger seat.

All occupants can join in the conversation if you want.

It does not fall foul of the mobile phone/driving law.

Aerials disguised as tax discs and no holes drilled in dashboard.

Don't fall foul of the law - 'Belt up' while driving

Keep on the right side of the law!

In 2003 a law was introduced making it illegal to use a handheld communications device while driving.

Penalties were initially a £30 fine. This was increased, in 2007, to £60 and three penalty points.

A 'communications device' was defined as any handheld device used to transmit or receive data - this would include speech, texts, facsimile, pictures or internet access. Two way radios, used by the emergency services, taxis and others, are specifically excluded from this law.

There are obvious dangers in using a handheld telephone while driving, but the main risk is that of the conversation itself (RoSPA). For this reason, using a handsfree kit while driving should also be avoided, and can result in a prosecution if the driving was deemed to be careless or dangerous, contributed to by the telephone call.

A device is hand-held if at any point the device must be held while making or receiving the call.

The law applies to a driver, or a qualified licence holder supervising a learner driver, of any motor vehicle, including motorcycles, while the vehicle is in motion, or stationary with the engine running, on any public highway, including car parks.

Apart from two way radios, the other exception to the law is if the mobile is used in a genuine emergency to dial 999 or 112 and it is deemed unsafe to stop (RoSPA).

While we have endeavoured to make this page as readable and factual as possible, we cannot be held responsible for any errors or omissions. Please refer to the RoSPA website for a fuller description of the law on using a mobile while driving.

THB Bury CC9060 Bluetooth Car Kit

You'd expect a state-of-the-art hands-free kit to offer excellent sound quality, be easy to use, and will ensure that you stay safe while on the move. With a touch screen and the new DialogPlus voice control system, the THB Bury CC 9060 does just that.

Crystal-clear sound

The speaker-independent DialogPlus voice control has a unique word recognition system which is both fast and highly accurate. However complicated a name sounds, however quickly you say a telephone number, the THB Bury CC 9060 responds to your voice immediately – and isn't affected by background noise.

Cutting-edge design

To help you use the voice control function effectively, the system provides clear visual and audio prompts, making for a highly user-friendly and enjoyable experience. And thanks to text-to-speech functionality, the THB Bury CC 9060 can also read text messages out loud – so you get the information you need without needing to look at the phone's display. From the very start of the design process, THB Bury were firmly focused on providing a user-friendly system that will help drivers stay safe on the roads. Why don't you see for yourself.

Alternatively you could follow this fella's example!

World's most expensive Mobile Phone

The Goldvish 'Le million'

A PR stunt it may be, and they surely can't be expecting to sell any, but the Goldvish "Le Million", above, is officially the most expensive mobile phone in the world, according to the Guinness Books of Records. The "Le Million" is a one off, featuring a blinding 120 carats worth of VVS-1 grade diamonds, according to designer Emmanuel Gueit.

If $1 million is out of your price range, then the Geneva-based Goldvish offers several other diamond-encrusted 18k gold models in your choice of rose, yellow, or white, starting at a much more reasonable $25,600 (£13,837).

And finally—Adam was hanging around the Garden of Eden feeling very lonely not having anyone to talk to. God took pity on him and told Adam that He was going to make him a companion, and that it would be a woman.

"This pretty lady will gather food for you. She will cook for you, and when you discover clothing she will wash it for you" God continued "She will always agree with you and will always be the first to admit that she was wrong when you've had a disagreement. She won't nag you, instead she will praise you continuously. She will bear your children and never ask you to get up in the middle of the night to take care of them.

"Finally," He continued, "she will never have a headache and will freely give you love when you so desire"

"How much will this woman cost?" asked Adam.

"An arm and a leg" was the response.

Adam asked: "What can I get for a rib?"...

... and the rest is history...
